OPM Delivers Digital Breakthrough for Federal Retirees

Washington, D.C. — For the first time, U.S. Office of Personnel Management (OPM) personalized Retirement Booklets are now accessible online as digital downloads. This 18-month effort now offers original and updated versions for retirees and survivors, advancing OPM’s digital retirement services. Over 2.8 million federal annuitants can now download their booklets on demand, bypassing the delays of requesting printed copies by phone and reducing agency printing costs. The paper option remains, but this development continues the larger effort to modernize OPM’s services.

“This is an important step to modernize retirement services and improve the retiree experience,” Acting Director Chuck Ezell said. “It’s a smart, digital-first solution that saves taxpayer dollars.”

The digital booklets are available now and accessible at this link: servicesonline.opm.gov.
